
Plagiarism Policy

Definition of Plagiarism: Plagiarism involves presenting someone else's work, ideas, or intellectual property as one's own without proper acknowledgment or permission. This includes, but is not limited to, copying and pasting text, paraphrasing without proper citation, and submitting work previously published by others.

MedPulse Spectrum's Commitment: MedPulse Spectrum is dedicated to maintaining the highest standards of academic integrity and ethical conduct in scholarly publishing. Plagiarism undermines the credibility of academic work and compromises the integrity of the scientific community. To address this, we have established a comprehensive plagiarism policy.

Plagiarism Detection

Manuscript Submission: All manuscripts undergo a thorough plagiarism check using specialized software upon submission. The generated similarity reports are meticulously reviewed by our editorial team.

Author Responsibility: Authors bear the responsibility of ensuring that their submitted work is both original and properly cited. Proper citation is mandatory for all sources, including the author's own previously published work.

Policy Enforcement

During the initial review, if plagiarism is detected, the manuscript is promptly rejected. Authors are duly notified, and the submission process is terminated. In cases of identified plagiarism in a published article, a comprehensive investigation is initiated. Corrective actions may include article retraction, author sanctions, and notifications to relevant institutions.

Author Responsibilities

Authors are required to properly cite all sources, including their own previously published work. Explicit acknowledgment and permission must be obtained for any material that has been published elsewhere.

Editorial Actions

The editorial team at MedPulse Spectrum takes plagiarism seriously. Depending on the severity and extent of plagiarism, actions may range from rejection to retraction of the manuscript, along with potential sanctions against the author.

Appeals

Authors have the right to appeal decisions related to plagiarism. Appeals are thoroughly reviewed by the editorial team, and additional expert opinions may be sought.

Educational Approach

MedPulse Spectrum adopts an educational approach to promote ethical publishing practices. This involves actively raising awareness among authors, reviewers, and the broader academic community.

Our plagiarism policy underscores our dedication to upholding the highest ethical standards, fostering a culture of honesty, and preserving the scientific integrity of health and allied sciences research.
